Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 11 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Unsettled and windy with rain at times.

Today:
After a bright, frosty start in the east, cloud and rain in the west will spread to most parts. Breezy, but turning milder than recently, especially in the south and west. Clearer, showery weather reaching the far northwest later.

Tonight:
Staying mild and cloudy across England and Wales with some rain and drizzle, mainly in the west. Clearer further north and turning chilly, whilst showers affect the far northwest.

Sunday:
Rain and drizzle across England and Wales moving northwards into Northern Ireland and Scotland. Very mild in the south. Windy in the west, severe gales in the far northwest later.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Widely mild with rain mainly affecting western parts of the UK, some of this heavy. Windy throughout, especially across the far N at first, then again on Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.